BARAGAN

Bishop Baraga Central High School
Marquette, Michigan

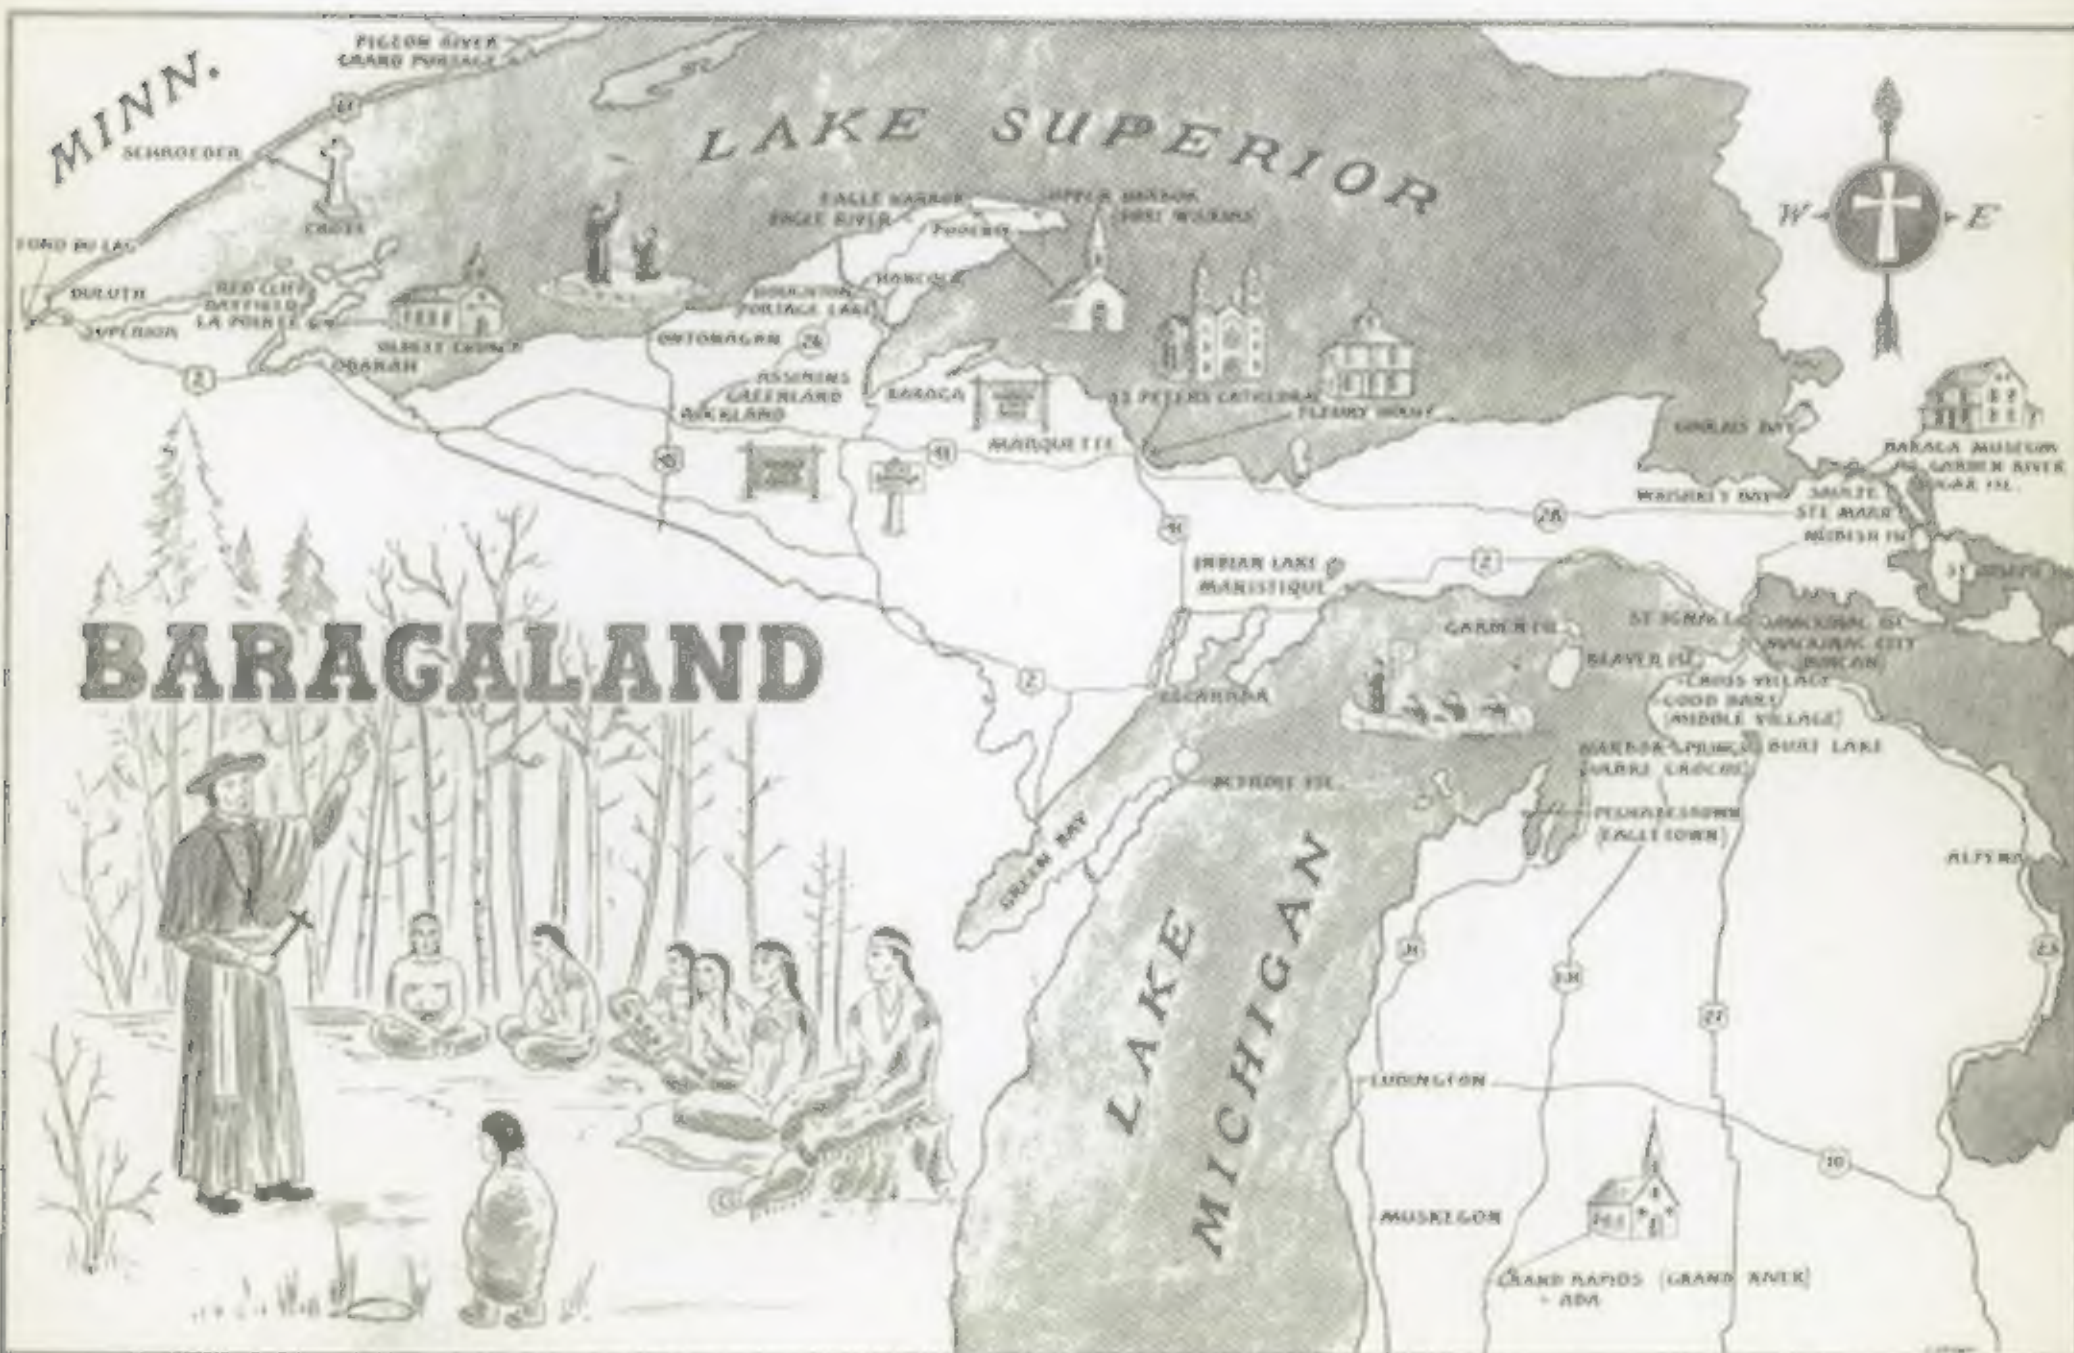

Foreword

Few took notice of the lone figure who stepped from the plank of the immigrant vessel. It was December 31, 1830, and this figure, shivering in the intense winter cold, was Father Frederic Baraga, native of the crown-land Carniola in Austria, who had come to America to give himself to the christianizing and educating of the Indians.

Father Baraga pulled his coat that hid his shabby clothing tightly about him. At his side he carried a carpet bag which contained all his earthly possessions; but what he lacked in wealth he made up for in determination and self-sacrifice.

This spirit has been carried on today in the form of a Catholic high school, far removed from the days of the Indians and frontier pioneers, but bearing the name of the great man who emblazoned the mark of christianity on the Upper Peninsula and the Lake Superior area.

Bishop Baraga Central High School has this spirit and has passed it down from generation to generation of its students. Its motto, "Omnia in Bonum," (all things must work together for the good to be achieved), suggests merely one facet of the life of God's great Apostle whose cause for canonization has been introduced, and who we hope, in the near future will be known as "Saint" Frederic Baraga, first Bishop of Marquette.

Dear Bev,
 Best of luck in future years.
 at Baraga hope we have as much fun in the next three years at school as we've had last year. Please don't get mad if I don't talk to you

Working With Us and For

"Are you sure that's the authors name?" Sister Rosalie asks a Baragan.

"Someone up there helped when that one was taken!" laughs Father Ellis as Sister Pelagia shows him a picture taken by St. Bernard.

Mrs. Treado starts checking her grade book for the standard 6-week report sheet.

Baraga Central Faculty

The faculty of Bishop Baraga Central has the reputation of being composed of competent and dedicated teachers.

Father Charles J. Carmody, superintendent, along with the help of Sister Mary Pelagia, principal, has greatly advanced the program of Baraga.

The main part of the faculty is made up of the Sisters of St. Joseph of Carondelet, who have been at Bishop Baraga High School since 1904.

The religious instruction program is carried out by the diocesan priests of the area who are appointed by the Bishop.

After giving him a "mop," Sister Ann Dominic says to Mr. Carter, "Now you're a loyal Royal."

Monsignor Casanova, Father Landreville, Father Harris, and Father Coleman gather for a little chat before beginning Religion classes.

Sister Mary Barat and one of her American History students discuss some of the finer points of the Civil War.

"What is it this time, Father, another batch of fan mail?" Father Stephen ribs Father Weber.

As they compare schedules, Father LeLievre tells Mr. Hamari, "I think the drill team will be ready by that time."

Leading the way for the start of a new day are Sister Anne Gertrude, Sister Joan of Arc, and Sister Angelica, followed by the student body.

"And then the test tube popped its cork, which flew across the lab and landed in the sink," says Sister Charlotte as she tells Sister Alice Josephine and Sister Marie Francis about some of her laboratory experiences.

Classes

As Bishop Baraga dedicated his life to the educating and Christianizing of the Indians and early settlers of this area, Bishop Baraga High School is dedicated to the same goals for its students.

All students at Baraga are required to take four years of religion.

The mathematics department at Baraga consists of algebra I-II, plane and solid geometry, and trigonometry.

Physics, chemistry and biology make up the science program which is offered at Baraga.

In social studies there are courses in world and American history and civics.

Those planning to enter the business field are helped greatly by general business, typing I-II, shorthand I-II and bookkeeping.

In the language department Baraga has an excellent English program consisting of four years of English, supplemented by speech, forensics, and journalism. In the foreign language field, courses in Latin and French are offered.

For those subjects that appeal to the pupils interest and special talents there are two industrial art courses, art and homemaking.

Baraga High School is accredited by the National Catholic Educational Association.

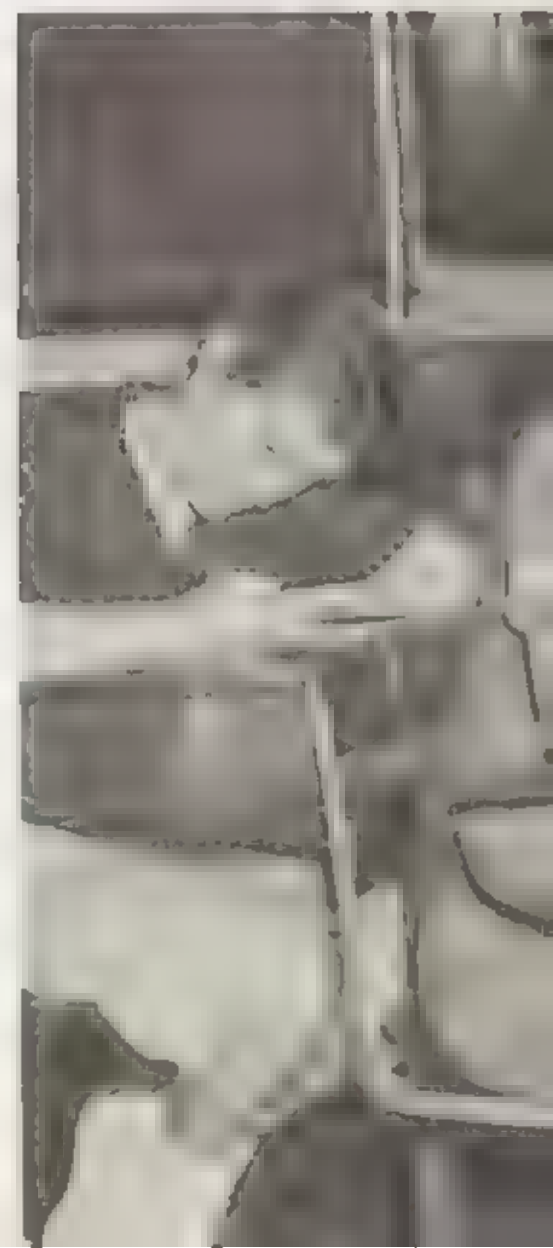

What are you looking at me for? I can't vote!" says Mike Spagnolo to Sandy Prosen, Pat Neimeyer, Peter Paquette, Judy St. Onge, David Olsen, Betty Kent, Mary Coppens, Frank Perlich, and Tom Price.

Tomorrow's Citizens Today

Civics instills in students an appreciation of our social heritage and an understanding of United States government, its political rights and practices.

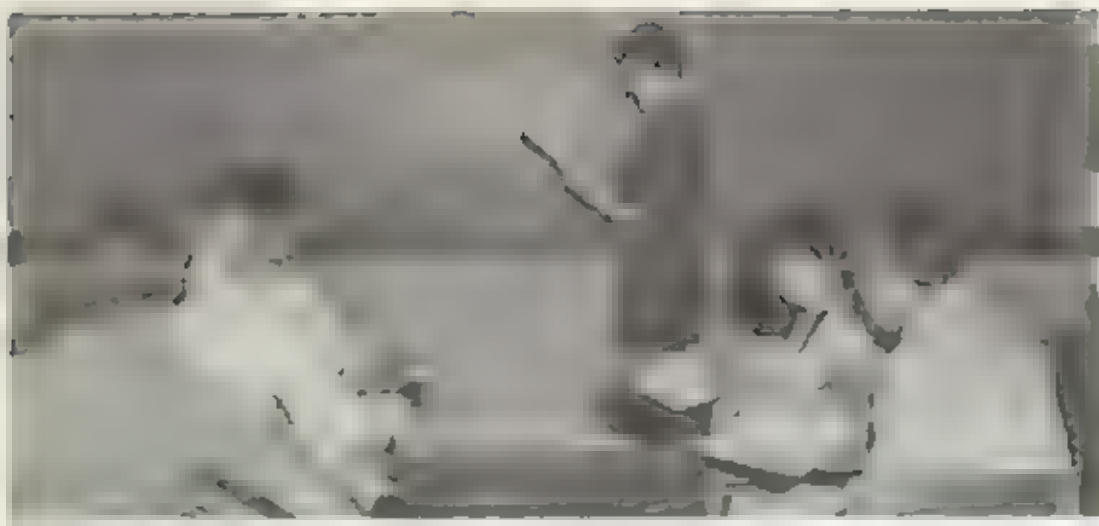

The World and America; Then and Now

The successes and failures of the past, and how we benefit from them, constitute the basis of study in history. Both the history of the world and of our country is offered at Baraga, and with it the problems and progress of man are reviewed.

'No, Pat, the Incas were in Peru, not the Aztecs,' says Mary Goulette to Pat McMahon, as American History students Diane DePetro, Barbara Kessel, Bill McVannel, Kathleen Miron, and Sandra Normand agree.

Let's see, who was emperor after Augustus? Mary Goulette is momentarily stumped in a World History test, but Carol Watt, Jacqueline Kuznetz, Ronald Bertrand, Bob Latrosse and Mike Manning seem to be having no trouble.

Lesson first comes, then goes. A student writes down as much as he can remember of the lesson, then the teacher reads it. Dagenais, Paul Reynolds, and Judy Wright take it down.

"Skeer me to death! Whut're you doin' around here, Curly?" screams Carol Beaudry as she and Carol Rlopelle, Ann Schlacter, and Mike Quinn read through Oklahoma.

"When the man in the green fedora hat started toward Genevieve, how did she react?" asks Patrick Moberg. Beverly LaBranche, Bill Gamble, Gary Gibbs, Rachelle Giuliani, Kathy Johnson, and Bill Johnson seem to be thinking about the answer.

Language-

The study of languages, ancient and modern, helps develop the whole student. It enables him to communicate with other people more effectively, thereby fostering a universal peace by removal of prejudice and tribalism. It is a language which enables the student to become more educated and articulate.

"Comment dit-on en Francals 'pass the glue'?" asks Pat Giantz as she works with Marilyn Mulzer, Veronica Garceau, Sandy Haynes, Pat Schmeltzer and Kay O'Neill on a poster for a French Club activity.

Gateway to Understanding

Christian who will contribute to the welfare of society by the ability to think clearly and honestly through an understanding of our native tongue, its ancestors and its relatives.

"What page was that vocabulary on? There's nothing here but a map," wonders Mary Dapras, as Jane Bleckiner and Carol Gray study their Latin.

This Year's Student Next

David Becker expounds his favorite theories on how the UN should be strengthened during a practice debate session.

"I did it," squeals Mary Gauthier as she pockets a ball during a rough tumble pool game in speech class. Mike Malloy has just given an informative speech on how to play the game. He then offers Mary a chance to try out what she has just been told. She accepts with hesitation, but proceeds to make the game her own. Pete LaRue, Steve Lynott, Mike Crowley, and Nancy LaCrosse seem absorbed in the game too.

Speech is one of the essential elements required for a well-rounded education. Through speech a student learns to communicate more effectively (not only as a speaker to a group but also in his everyday conversation.) A speech course will profit him by enabling him to carry on an intelligent exchange of ideas with nothing lost through misinterpretation. Only through complete understanding of our fellow man can we have peace with him. Speech brings us a little closer to this understanding.

Year's Leader

One of the more talkative speech students, Mike McMahon, starts the year by introducing himself and his hobby. He gives a short speech on what soapbox racing is and his interest in it. Not to be content with just an explanation, he brings the car and its accessories to demonstrate them for us. This happens later in the year. They finally have to do something about this mania for soapbox racers so David King, Dan Trotochaud, and Peter Fleury help the car out the door as Mike watches. Mike has one last comment, "Aw fellas, I'm not done yet!"

Clear Thinking and Creative Endeavor-Hand in Hand in Mathematics

Mathematics, although having a practical side, also has values similar to those in art and in music. It brings out the creativeness inherent in every student and prepares him to use mathematical concepts and skills in his business and family life.

'Gosh, anyone knows that $(A + C)(B + D) = AB + BC + AD + CD$. . . Algebra II students Pat Meyers, Michael Leanes, Joseph Buys, Fran Glazer, Jeff Meyer, Scott Haynes, Bruce Kueber, Tom Jurkovich, Matt Olson, Jeff Peterson, Sarah V. Smith, and John O'Neill, and Daniel Balmes.

“Sister, why is that a minus two?” Sister Dominic asks Sister Elizabeth. Algebra I students Mary Bullock, Elizabeth Kent, and Susan Pearce seem to wonder, too.

“I’ve got it!” says Fran Gingras as he solves an algebraic riddle while Lynn Kovarik, math club president, looks on.

Curious? Figuring out? Howard Hillier, Robert Crowl, Mary Garside, Dan Crowley, and Mike Manning found this interesting.

Veronica Garside entertains the members of the Math Club with an algebraic puzzle.

Business Education- Thorough and Honest

In business education Baraga's gain specialized training in the essential skills, traits, attributes and knowledge necessary in the business world. It instills in the students a sense of efficiency and fair play, and prepares them for business activities in their future lives.

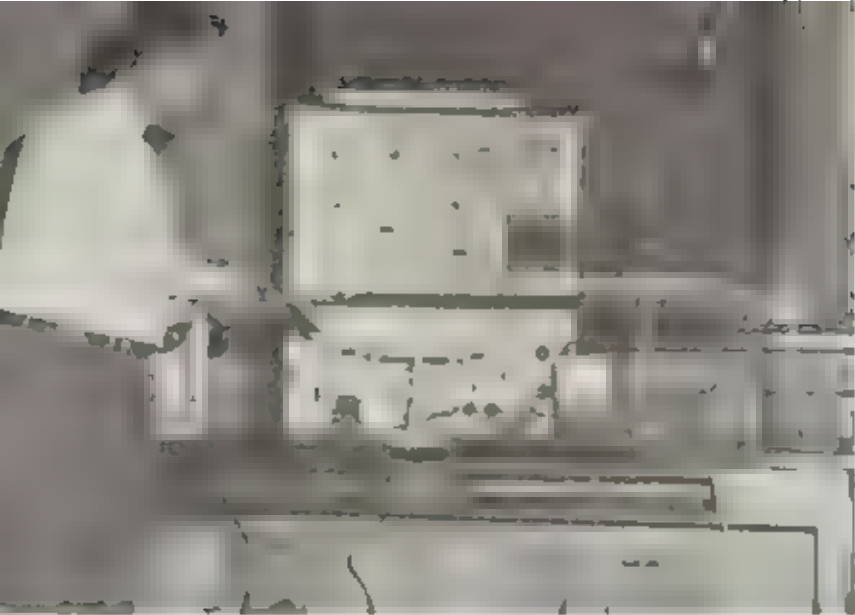

Teller John Mattis receives deposits from Marie Grobar and Kathleen Haara during a Commercial Business dramatization of banking procedures.

"Louder class," says Sister Marie Francis, as Catherine Christensen, Marilyn Dagenais, Carol Beaudry, Mary Olivier and Janet Grobar shake the building with "trans-a-k, transact".

"Dear Mr. Jones"--and the letter continues as Marie Murray, Karen Heath, Mary Kay Schartz, and Sally Gregorich transcribe their shorthand notes.

Mr. McKindles, traveling scientist gives a demonstration for the physics class.

Mary Pineno, Gail Pellinen, Pam Provost, Gretchen Gregorich, Margaret LaRue, and Sue Schlacter enjoy a movie in connection with their studies in health.

Denise Stanley, Mike McGinley, and Joann Lenore are fascinated by the organs of a crayfish.

Exploring God's Wonders

Science is the study of environment and its effect upon people. Through this study, a pupil discovers what makes up his surroundings and what laws govern them. Society itself is decidedly affected by changes in circumstance. A student who learns to change his environment by applying the maxims of science makes himself a valuable asset to humanity. By enabling a student to do this, science makes an invaluable contribution to civilization.

Bob Bernard exclaims, "It's easy!" as he demonstrates for Mary Goldworthy and Mike Leanes how to use the new balance in physics.

The demonstration of decorating a cake holds the attention of the homemaking class, Marilyn Haley, Julie Gross, Ann Hobmeier, Suzie Racine, Virginia Hulverson, and Carol Sarka.

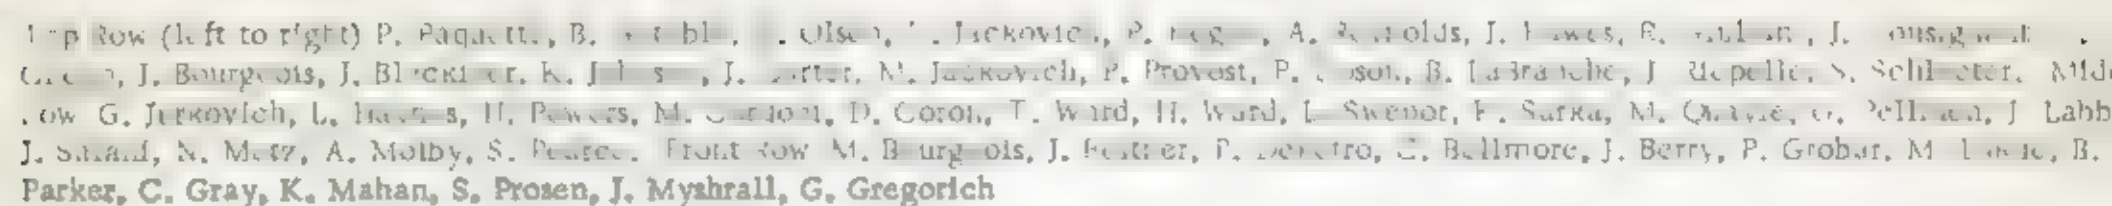

Culture and Management in the Home

Art in itself includes the ability to draw and paint, to copy and create. But homemaking is also an art—the art of managing a home and making it a home. Art adds to the culture of the home while homemaking makes the home.

Sally Gregorich, chosen Homemaker of Tomorrow, is proud of the pin she is wearing.

Engrossed in his drawing, Paul LaBreche makes sure that he gets the right color scheme.

If one were to enter Baraga Central between 8:30 and 9 o'clock in the morning probably the first thing he would hear would be the sounds of music drifting through hallowed halls. If you followed this music to its source, chances are you would find yourself in the midst of the Girls' Glee Club, Boys' Glee Club, Mixed Chorus, or Freshman Chorus rehearsal. These groups practice every day and when the time comes to exhibit their talent, their months of preparation show forth beautifully.

Pleasure in Song

Richard Johnson confidently begins naming the symbols on the staff for the benefit of Lee Haynes, Henry Ward, and the rest of the class.

The Madrigals form a wreath as they perform for the Christmas Concert. Sandy Haynes, Sue Dupras, Barbara Montagna, Mary Davey, Kay O'Neill, Mary Garceau, Sue Bubnich, Mary Kay Winter, Veronica Garceau, Pat Stratton, and Pat McKeown. Those not shown are Pat Pompo, Irene Dionne, and Janice Chapman.

Joan Salani asks Sister Marian, "Why didn't he finish that symphony? He surely had a wonderful start." Bonnie Bolduc, Joan Berry, Patricia Grobar, Ann Molby, Jean Thoren, Kathleen Mahan, Lois Swenor, and Nancy Metz also listen to Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony."

Jerry Hawes prepares to check the parts of his bookcase for a correct fit. If they won't? Well, back to the drawing board.

Jerry Schwemin, knowing that a good plan is one of the first essentials of a good project, is absorbed in putting his ideas on paper.

Craftsmen in

Jerry Trotochaud, Ronald Provost, and Charles Hawes are beginning construction on their model houses which they blue-printed themselves.

Tools and know-how come next to a good plan. Frank Perlich makes good use of all three in an article of his own design.

Donald DeVoght brings Mr. Carter his latest problem. Is this board sturdy enough to resist wear? Jerry Hawes also appears puzzled.

he Making

By the smiles of Paul Paquette, Mr. Gucky, Fred Johnson, and Lesley Lawrence, apparently there have been no mishaps.

It appears that Ronald Ryoti and Bruce Sandstrom have successfully warded off their opponents in the game of "White Horse."

Working, Playing

Christine Bellmore beams at the top of the pyramid made by Janet Carter, Pat Kovarik, Fredericka Cram, Christine Bussiere, Joan Labby, Phyllis DePetro, Mary Ann Bourgeois, and herself under the instruction of Mrs. Treado.

and Learning

Ken Schwemin converses with Mr. Raish and Mr. Lawry, maintenance directors, before buffing the floor during half-time at a basketball game.

Driver training, maintenance, and gym; although these things may not be related, they are some of the activities that are not so pronounced as others in the school.

Driver training is a special course offered to those Baragans of required driving age, that teaches them the fundamentals and regulations of good driving.

Two years of gym is required of every Baragan. It helps keep his body healthy and provides for his general well being.

The buildings and grounds of Bishop Baraga High School are cared for by a fully competent maintenance crew made up of two custodians and five part-time student janitors.

Father Ellis, Baraga's Spiritual Director, discusses some of the news in the first issue of the Bar-Ket with Jerry Shimon, Student Council President.

Guides To

The Baragan Administration places great emphasis and gives wide scope to religious practices and instruction. This religious program is conducted by the diocesan priests who do their best to inform and bring about a better understanding of man's bonds with God. The Student Guidance program, under the direction of Father Glen Weber, helps students achieve better personal adjustment and make the most of their education both for the present and the future. Another very important phase of religion is the Spiritual Guidance Department. Father Ellis Zimmer, O.F.M. Cap., is trained to assist Baragans in their spiritual formation and development. In both of these departments the main concern is the students' welfare and future in relationship to God, his neighbor, and himself.

Father Weber helps Paul Reynolds make a decision about his future plans.

Christian Living

Dick Bourgeois (left) listens attentively to Magr. Casanova's discourse on the proofs for the existence of God while Gary Laurich looks for additional information.

We are directly under the influence of the Bishop, (right) whose Pontifical Masses are attended by Baragans, thereby bringing us even closer to Christ through His Shepherd. Gary Jurkovich and Richard Ganfield take advantage of the proffered opportunities.

Mary Kinville and Sue Bubnich, co-editors of the Bar-Ket, and their advisor, Sister Angelica, discuss plans for the paper.

As Pat Sneed puzzles over what's going on, Barbara Montagna, Mabel Beauchamp, Kathleen Scully, and Tom Hickey check their stories for publication.

Journalism instills in a student an awareness of the world around him. It gives him an interest in what is happening to people everywhere and a sympathetic feeling toward them. It enables him to take a "bird's-eye" view, analyze a situation with coolness and clarity that would otherwise be hard to attain. Journalism boosts a student's ability to think in a clear logical manner.

Most members of the Publications Staffs attended the CSPA Convention in Milwaukee. Tom Hickey, Veronica Garceau, Kathy Scully, and Marilyn Mulzer seem eager to get started.

Journalism - Recorder of Time

A yearbook is a matchless part of school life. It is a history in picture and print of activities that happen during the year. It is something that can be looked forward to with anticipation and cherished with pride in the years that follow.

Even though a yearbook is a chapter in a student's life, so it is a small part in the records of a school. Everything that is done at a school cannot possibly be kept in the permanent record file. A yearbook keeps these otherwise "lost" items for future generations to see and admire. The yearbook is the story of a school, its joys, and its sorrows.

Marilyn Mulzer, Baragan editor, and Sister St. Bernard, advisor, devise the senior picture schedule.

Even at 6 A.M. Baragans are interested in the news. Mary Pelissier and Mae Beauchamp read the newspaper as they wait for the train to Milwaukee for the CSPa Convention.

Activities

The Baragan spirit is shown most clearly in the various activities, both co-curricular and extra-curricular, participated in by the students.

Organizations and group activities are essential parts of our society. Man, by nature, is gregarious, that is, he tends to assemble with other people to accomplish goals which are unattainable through individual efforts, and for recreation and social well being.

Students at Bishop Baraga High School have an opportunity to join in this type of activity through such organizations as the Mixed Chorus, Sacristy Guild, and clubs like the Columbian Squires, and the Math and Science Clubs.

By partaking in these group activities, the students will derive both education and enjoyment.

They Represent Us

Students attending Bishop Baraga Central have an opportunity to express their opinions to the faculty and administration and to have a voice in class activities.

They can do this through their class officers and Student Council. These officers and Student Council members are elected by the student body and are chosen as their representatives. A person holding such an office must be willing to offer his time cheerfully in order to serve the interests of those he represents in projects undertaken by the school.

"How many hours a day do you practice?" asks Jesse Wright of Fred Lowery, famed whistler, while Jim Boles and Peter Andriacchi listen in.

"Egads, it's hot in here!" says Joe Feltner, as Bob Groschere is clad in a some what cooler garb. The boys modeled some of the clothes of other lands for Mr. Robert Christenson, who spoke of his travels around the world.

Tom Richer, treasurer; Pat Glantz, vice-president; Gary Laurich, president; and Karen Heath, secretary, compose the senior class officers.

Leading the Juniors are Steve Lynott, president; Sue Hampton, secretary; Mary Olivier, treasurer; and Sue Myhrall, vice-president.

Dan Jackovich, secretary; Tom Price, treasurer; Judy St. Onge, vice-president; and Tom Larne, president, constitute the freshman class officers.

Members of the Student Council escorted parents through Baraga at a meeting of the Home and School Association.

Advancing Catholic Education

This year a new addition to Baraga was dedicated to the cause of Catholic education. The gymnasium, though less than a year old, has been the scene of many activities. The gym has become not only a place for sports but a social center as well. School dances, the Glee Club concert, roller skating are many of the activities held here. The gym has and will keep on contributing to a greater Baraga now and for many years to come.

"Congratulations," says Father Carmody to Fran Gingras as he presents to him his Mu Alpha Theta certificate. Other new members are Sue Myshraill, Mary Kinville, Mary Sandstrom, and Mary LaFave.

"Bless the Lord, O my soul! O Lord my God, you are great indeed," says Mary Kinville as she practices her forensic piece with Sister Charlotte.

Education and Recreation

"If this doesn't work I'll use candle wax," says Lynn Kovarik as he puts vasoline on his dielectric pump.

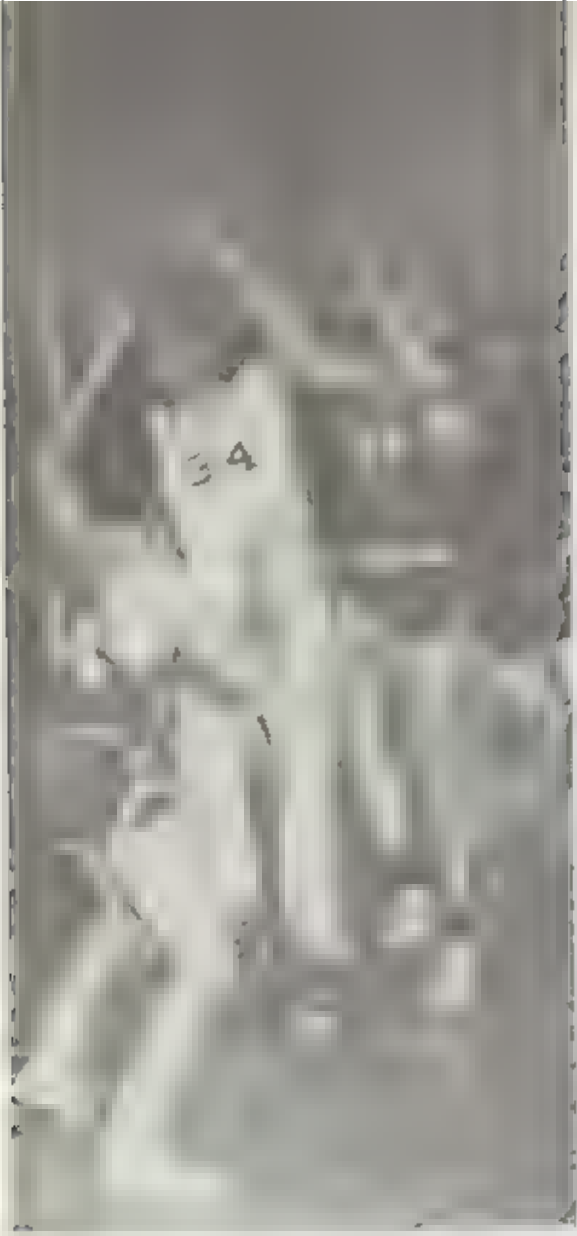

Future Nurses Carol Beaudry and Irene Dionne assist Robert Grandell with his dinner.

Discussing the days' events over a coke at Donckers are Diane Musolf, Anne Menze, Paulette Smith, Karen Dagnais, and Sue Hampton.

Friendly Competition

Father Landreville is hemmed in by Ken Schwemin and Earl Claus as he tries for a rebound in the student-faculty game.

Pat Glantz and Gary Laurich, Baraga Girl and Baraga Boy, are crowned by Bar-Ket editors, Marylu Kinville and Sue Bubnich.

Baragans had a chance to witness history in the making as televisions were put in the classrooms and students watched the inauguration of President John F. Kennedy.

and True Baragan Spirit

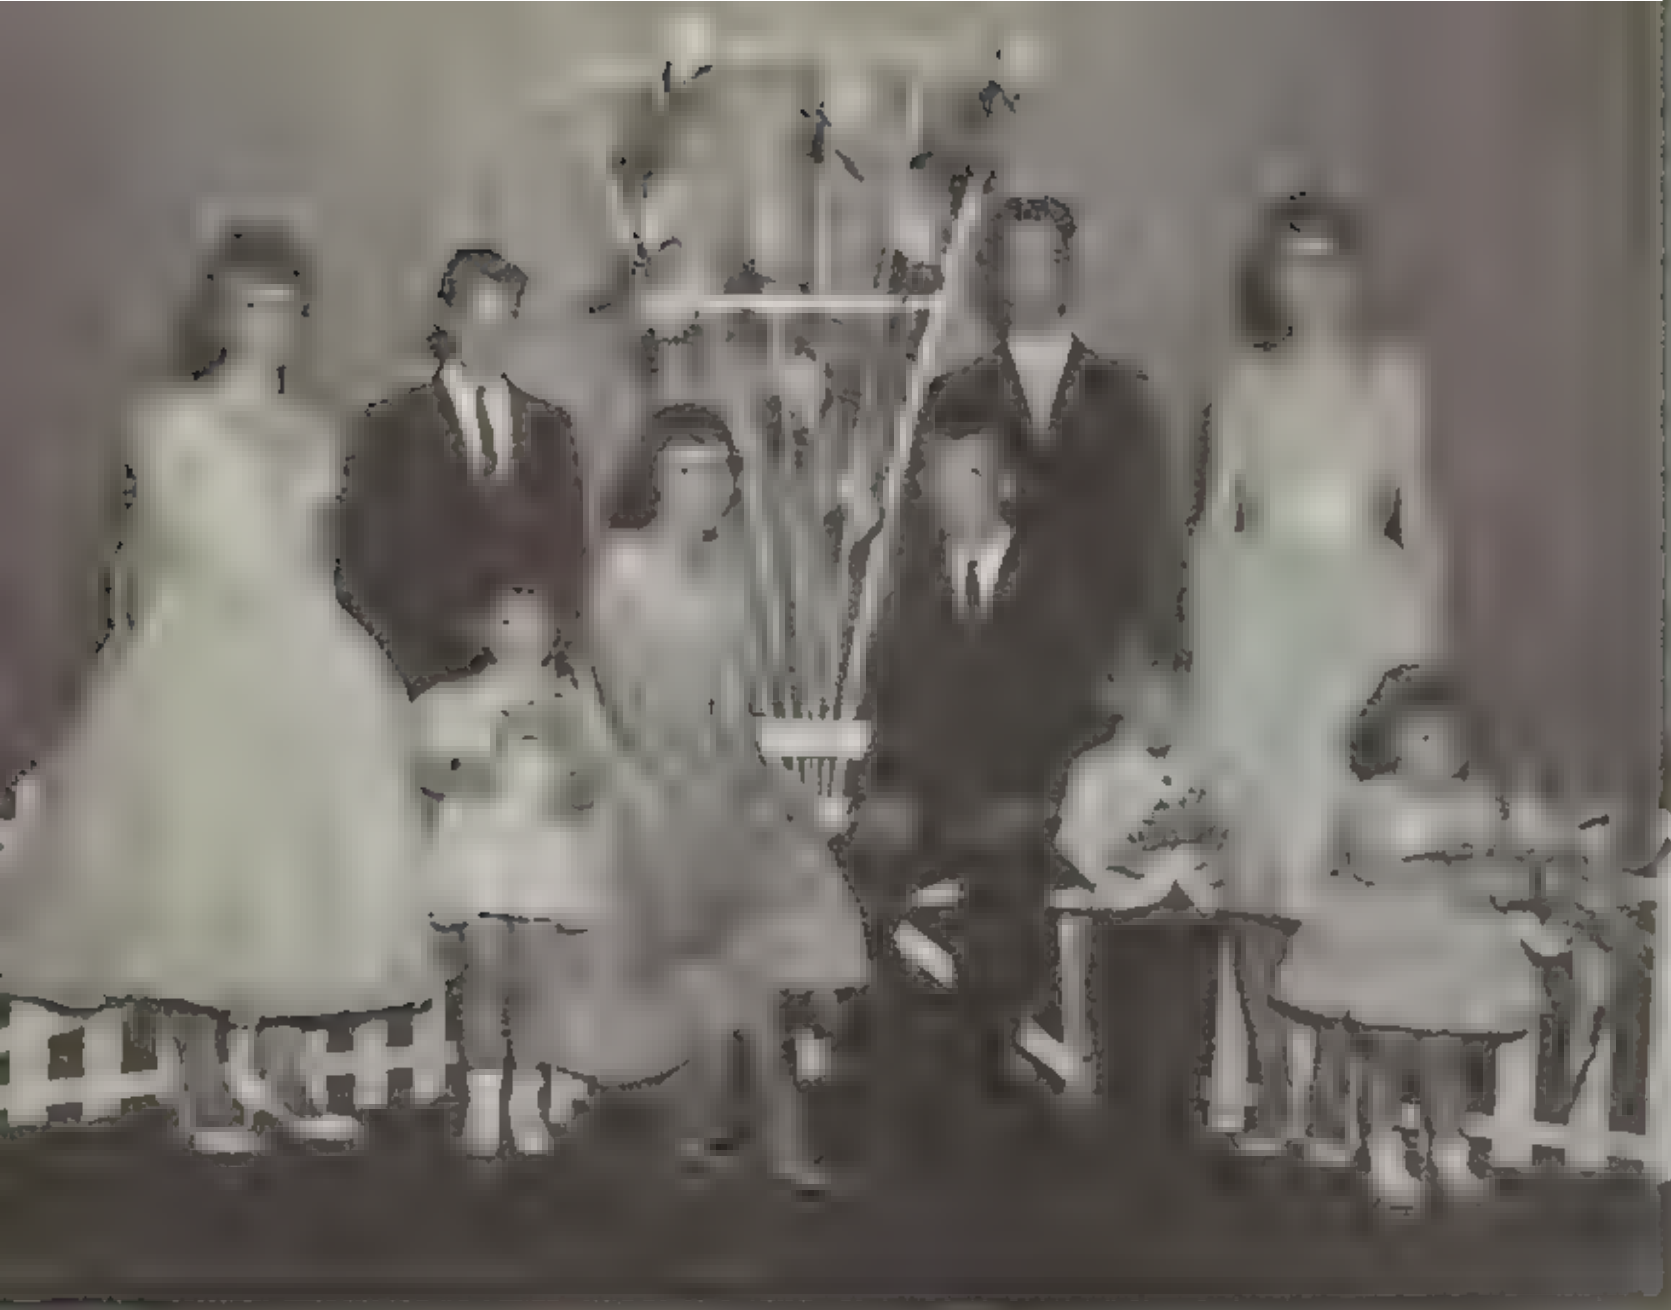

A new tradition at Baraga, the annual Baraga Day, was held this year on January 20. Some of the interesting events of this day are class skits, cheers and mottos. This year one other event made this day a special day; it was Inauguration Day for President Kennedy. Almost every classroom had a television to enable the students to watch the inauguration proceedings.

Ray Schwemin and Mary LaBreche, king and queen for the Junior Prom, pose with their court, Mary Sandstrom with escort, Gary Malvasio, and Sue Hampton with escort, Larry McGee. Christine and Randy Marlowe are crown bearers. The flower girl is Judy Lenore.

Don Kitscher, Mary Lakenen, and Al Wilder listen with somewhat doubtful expressions on their faces as Kathy Deasy and JoAnne Pompo test the acoustics in the hallway.

Highlights of '61

Seniors Gary Laurich, Judy Wright, Sheila Mohar, Terry Belfry, Marylu Kinville, and Joe Beiring take it easy after finishing the decorations for the Christmas dance.

Father Carmody and senior class officers, Gary Laurich, Patricia Glantz, and Karen Heath admire the photocopy presented to the school by the senior class.

Standing on top of their class through four years of high school are valedictorian, Veronica Garceau and salutatorian, Marilyn Mulzer.

Senior Achievements

"You see, Gary," Father Carmody informs Gary Laurich as Pat Glantz, Janice Chapman, Pat Pompo, Charles Hawes, and Ron Provost listen in. "Dick might be called a 'wise guy, but he has a certain sophistication, and he's not at all offensive." Roles in Our Hearts Were Young and Gay was the topic under discussion.

Sweetheart - Competition With a Cause

The Sweetheart Dance, a semi-annual event, is the climax of a hard-fought campaign by each of the four classes to put their candidate in as Baraga's Sweetheart. Although the contest itself is fiercely competitive; there is an underlying theme of co-operation for a common goal. This goal is money for the missions. The class that contributes the most per capita for its candidate will see her crowned Sweetheart on the night of the dance.

"I Could Have Danced All Night" doesn't seem to be the theme song of these students at the Sweetheart Dance.

"Put a little more shine on the left toe," says Father Carmody to the amusement of Jesse Wright, Kenny Montagna, and Danny Depetro, as Bernard Schmeitzer, Larry Christensen, and Lloyd Peterson polish his shoes. "Well done, gentlemen!"

Bonnie Parker, runner-up in the Sweetheart contest, is escorted to the throne by her father, Mr. William Grace.

Mike McMahon, engineer of the freshmen girls' basketball game, has the help of Clarence Watt in replacing the bleachers.

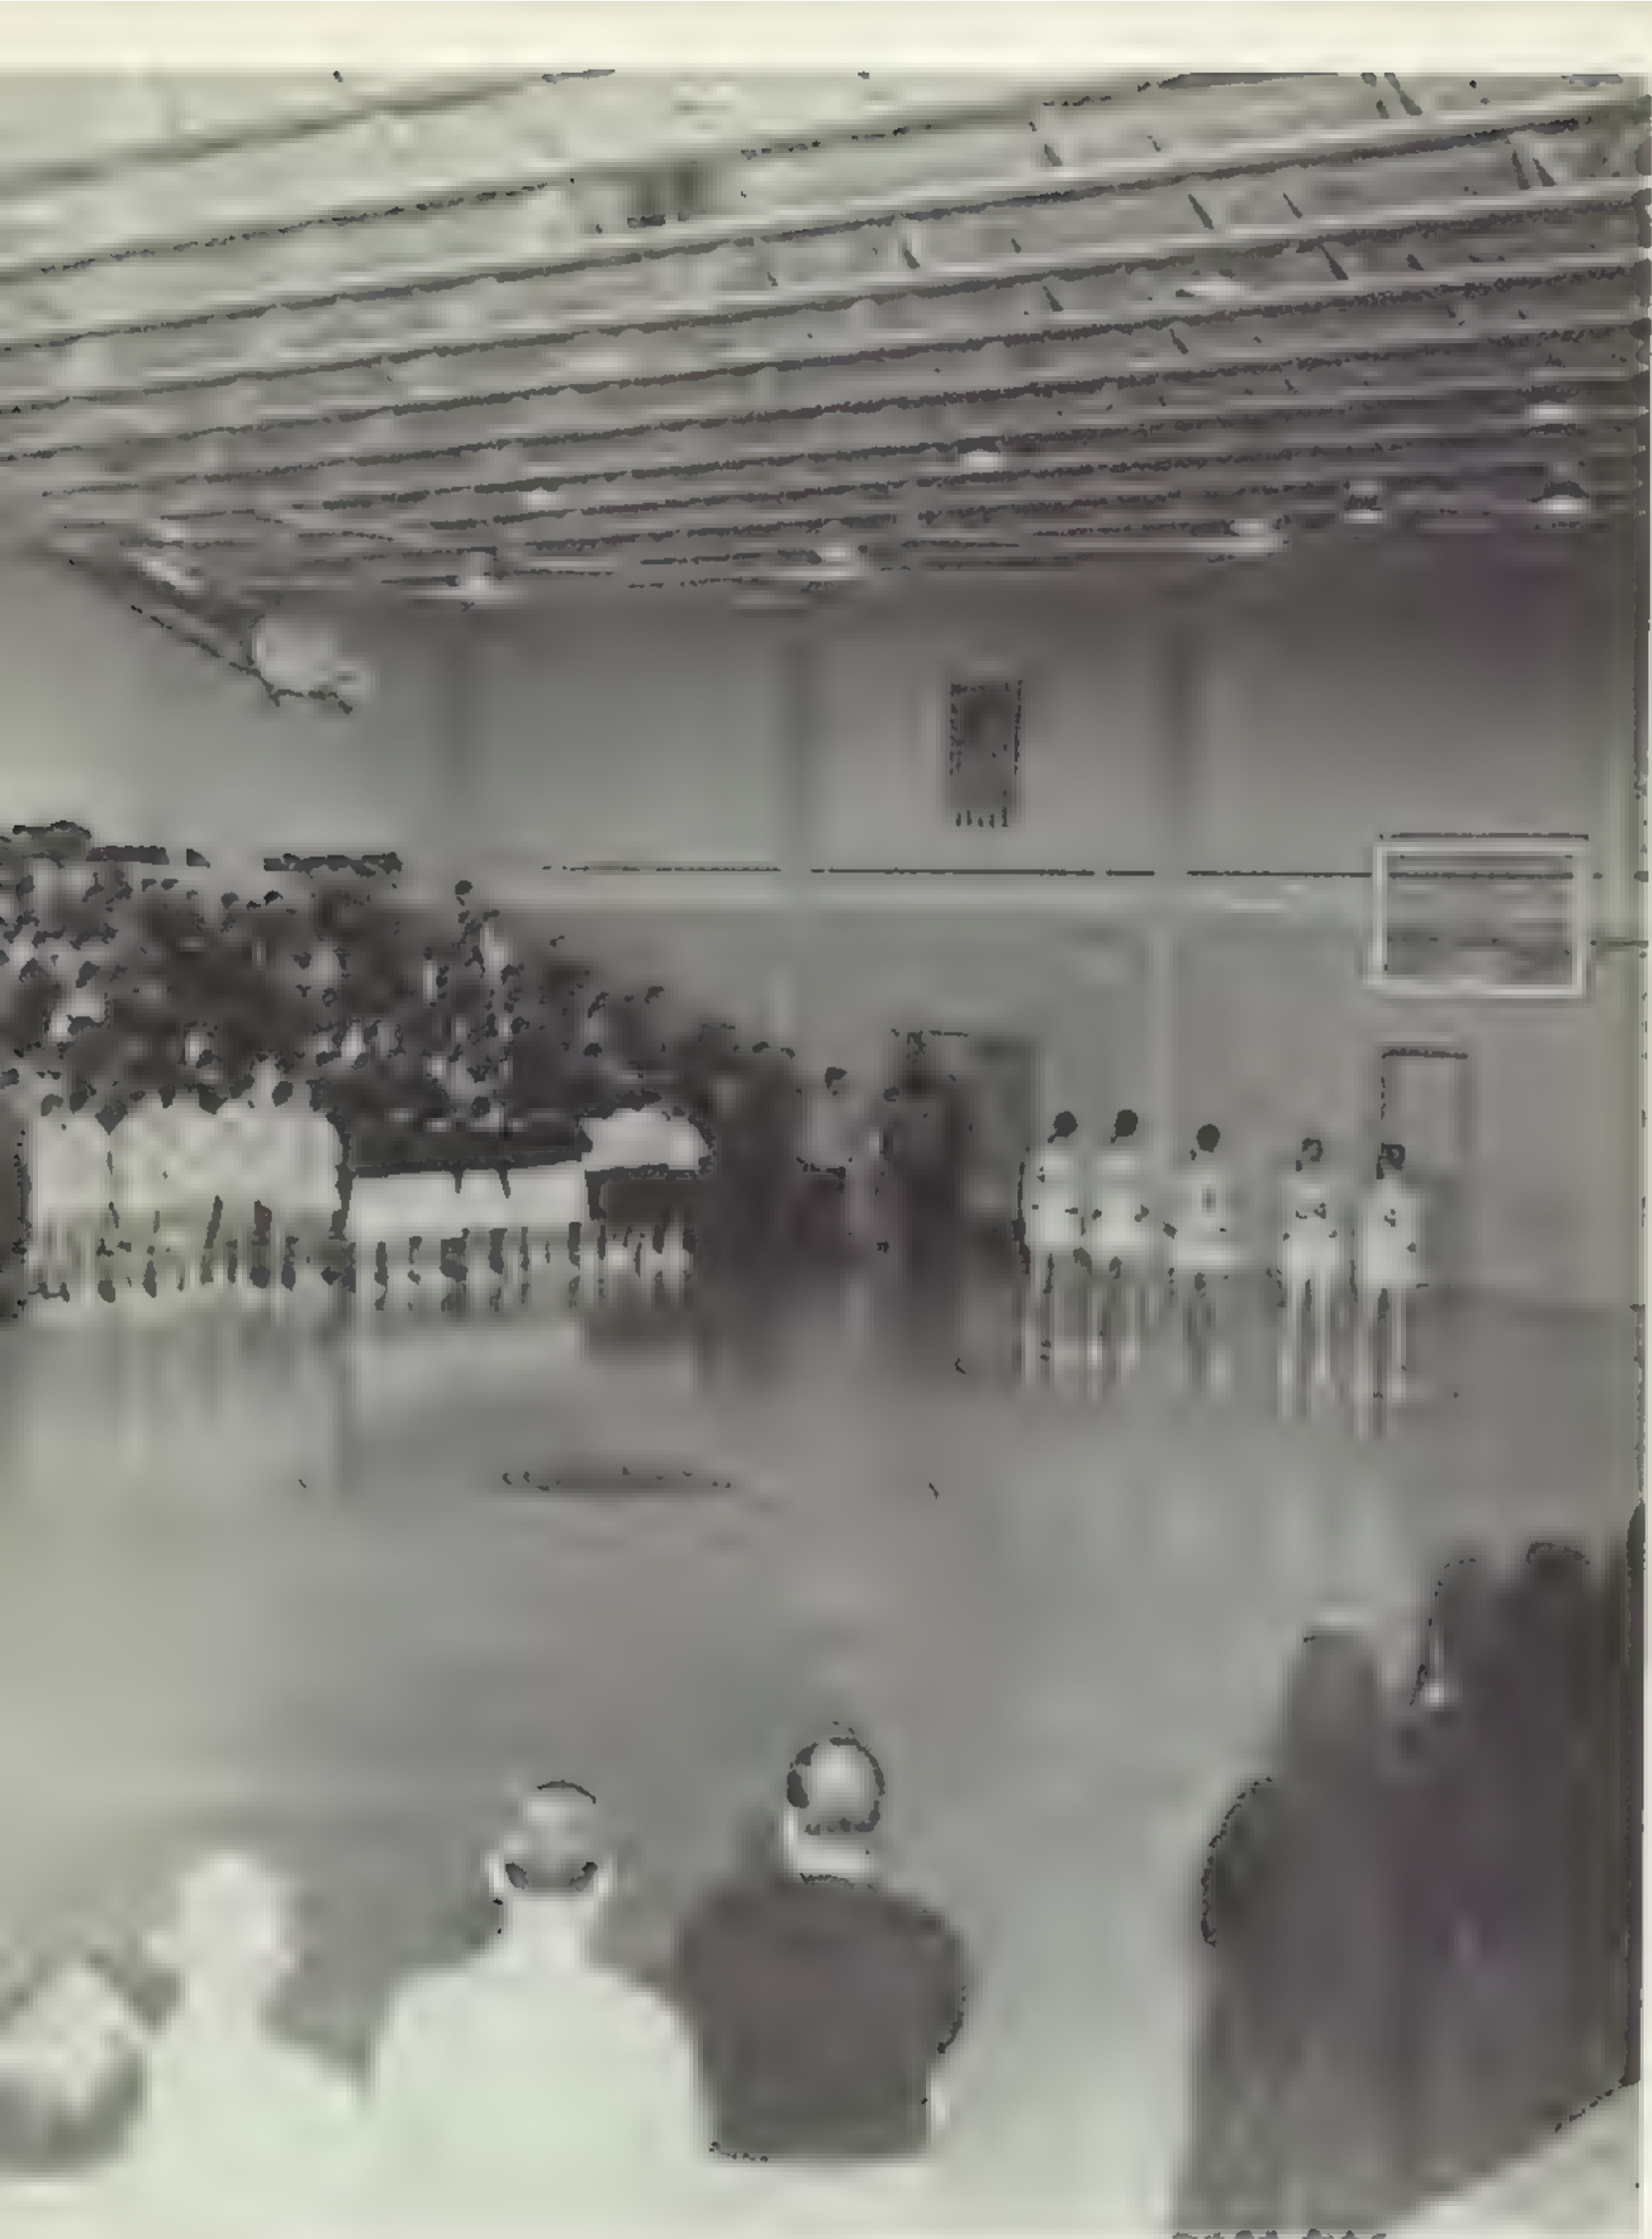

Strong winds and snow flurries didn't stop Howard Hillier, Bruce Voet, Mike Dallas, Sue Robertson, and Jim Crowley from washing cars to raise money for their candidate.

Athletics

The spirit of self-determination and self-improvement shown so admirably by its namesake, Bishop Baraga, is displayed in the athletic program at Baraga High School. For many years the people of Marquette have enjoyed attending the Royals' basketball games and now with the addition of the new gymnasium many more will be able to enjoy the games. While it is true that the Royals do not win every game, you can be sure that they're always in there fighting. During the '60-'61 school year, the Baraga Central baseball team showed their spirit by winning the Mid-Peninsula Conference Championship. Baraga, which is a member of the Mid-Peninsula Championship in baseball and basketball, also participates in the conference in track competition.

Mike Crowley and Joe Peterson are intent on stopping the acquisition of two points for their opponents in a rough and tumble game in Sidney Adams gym.

In addition to regular physical education classes, Baraga has a program of co-curricular athletics. Although physical achievement is the definite end, sportsmanship is considered an essential quality. Baraga is represented in the Mid-Peninsula Basketball Conference by senior and junior squads. The Royals also play other non-conference teams in the area.

Varsity cheerleaders Sue Bubnich, Mary Goldsworthy, Kathy Varney, Mary Kinville, Mary McGuire, Elaine Betts, Sue Myshrahl, and Barb Dagenais lead the crowd in singing our school song as our king, Philip Garceau and queen, Allison Myshrahl look over their subjects.

Basketball - Dedication

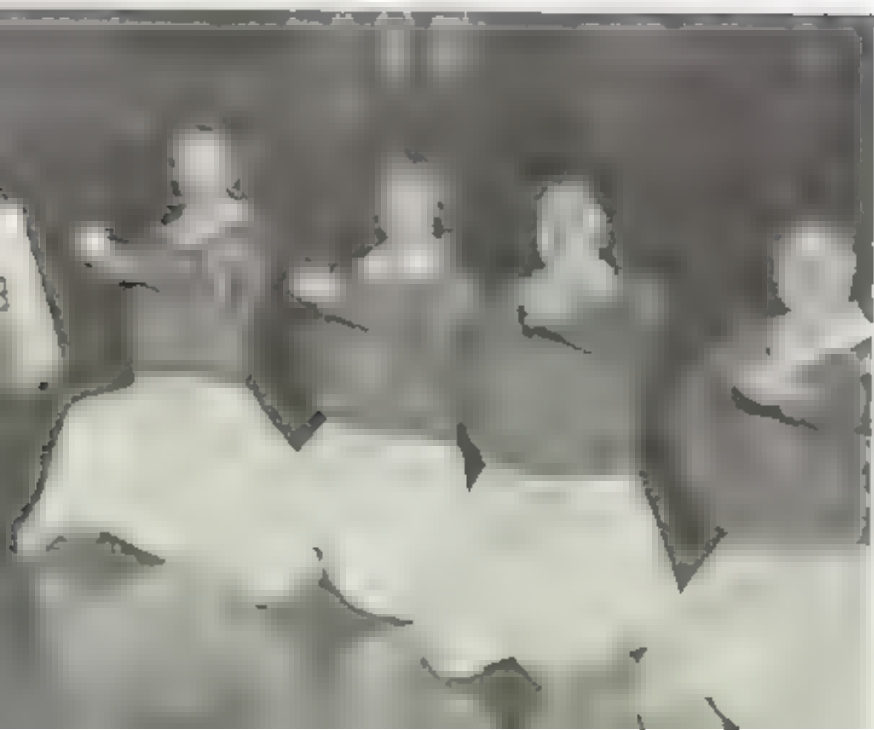

Mike Leanes and a L'Anse player go high in the air for a tip, as Royals, Fran Gingrass, Joe Beiring, and Paul Paquette are ready to move.

The crowd went wild as the final buzzer echoed through the gym and the Royals brought home a hairline victory over L'Anse.

to Desire . . .

Mike Leanes, high point man for the year, and Dan Balmer, high point man for the tournaments pose in front of trophies of years past.

Dan Balmer drives past a Painesdale defender for a layup with Joe Beiring on hand to offer assistance as the fast break pays off.

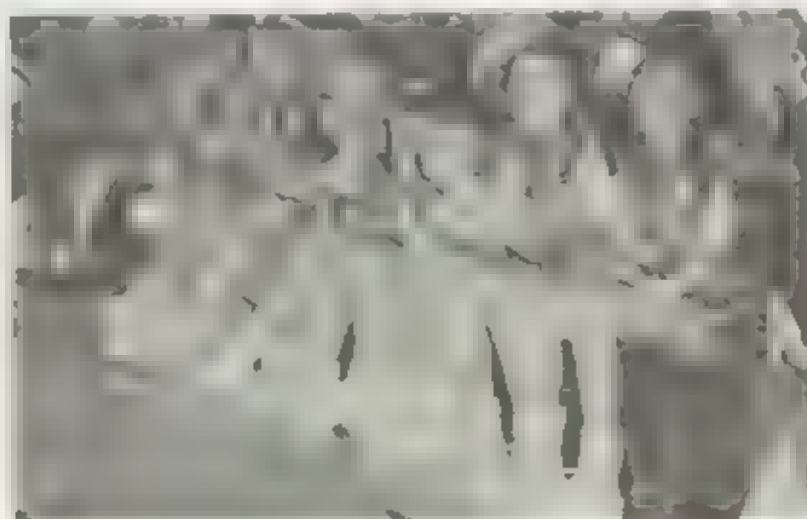

"Go, Fight, Win!" yell B-team cheerleaders Jean Thoren, Pat Upson, Kathy Dwyer, Suzy Racine, Maxine Schwemin, Jodi Mystrall, Bonnie Parker, and Mary Lou Davey.

Tom LaRue seems afflicted with the bends as he gets a shot under the basket while Gwinn defenders move in.

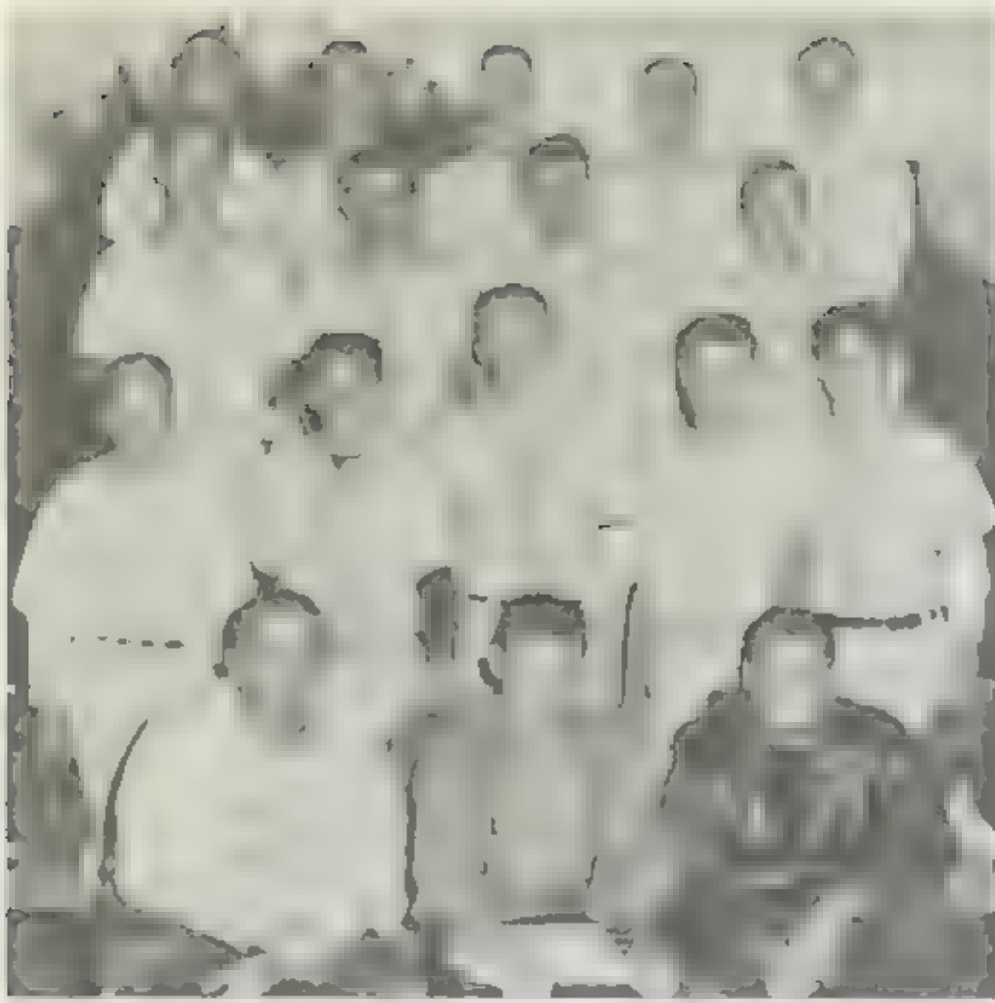

"Nice play, keep it up!" yells Coach Bertagnoni as the B team reserves whoop it up.

and Duty

Bill Pesola makes like Peter Pan as he puts in two points while Bill Kessel eagerly awaits the results.

The team is informed by Mr. Hamari that they have one down and two to go.

Our Winning Nine

Coach Hamari gives the baseball team a pep talk before the game.

Baraga Central is represented in the Mid-Peninsula Athletic Conference by a fine baseball team. Baseball at Baraga is a major sport played in the fall. This year the baseball team won the Mid-Peninsula Championship, proving in sports as well as other fields, that at Baraga "quality is a most important product."

Bill Jannausch puts one into orbit to bring in a run for Baraga.

Lunch call could cause the speed put on by Bill Jannausch, Alan Wilder, Paul Paquette, Bill Pesola, and Bob LaCosse, but they are only engaged in a practice sprint.

"The Cinder-Fellas"

Baraga has a track team that competes in several meets a year. These are held in the spring, and include the Mid-Peninsula Track Meet and U.P. championships. The team is open to all who prove their ability in one or more of the events, such as the pole vault, high jump, broad jump, shot put, hurdles, and various dashes and relays.

Steve Lynott shows good form as he sails over the first hurdle with ease.

Paul Paquette gets set to heave a long one as he practices the shot put.

"Holy cow! A seven foot jump!" Coach Bertagnoli stands awed as he observes proceedings during practice. P.S. It wasn't seven feet, just five feet seven inches.

Tom LaRue gives that extra push trying to clear the bar in the pole vault.

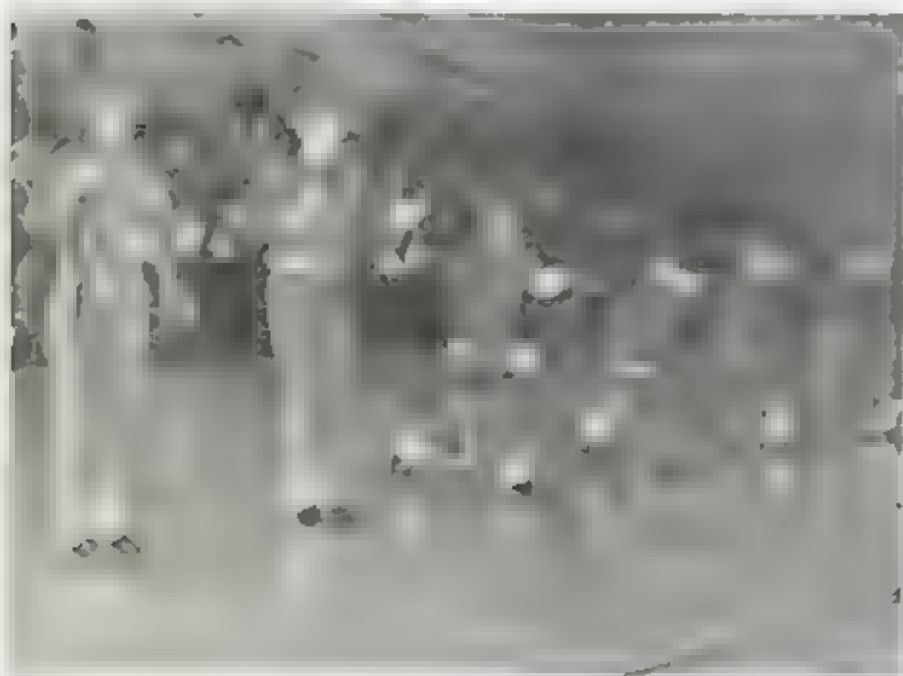

"Will you go to the prom with me?" Kathy Varney asks Elaine Betts during a pep skit.

Tom Hicky and Barb Montagna are caught by the camera as they pass out programs before a basketball game.

Pep in Action

Bob Groschere, Dan Fassbender, Bruce Chopp, Leo Richer, Pat McMahon, and Joe Feltner, members of the Baraga Drill Team, perform the difficult "Queen Ann's Salute."

School spirit is made of many things. The Drill Team, basketball games, and other sports events are the most evident sources of spirit, but most school spirit is derived from things such as pep rallies, skits, posters, handing out programs, and buying a banner.

All these things combine and work together to develop an atmosphere of pride and duty to our school.

Another new addition at Baraga is the concession stand in the new gym. Ruth Balwinski, Louis Mohar, Barbara Truckey, Richara Bellmore, Joan Parent, Judy Olen, Barbara Dagenais, and Shurley Berger buy refreshments from Mary White between quarters of a Royals' basketball game.

Seniors

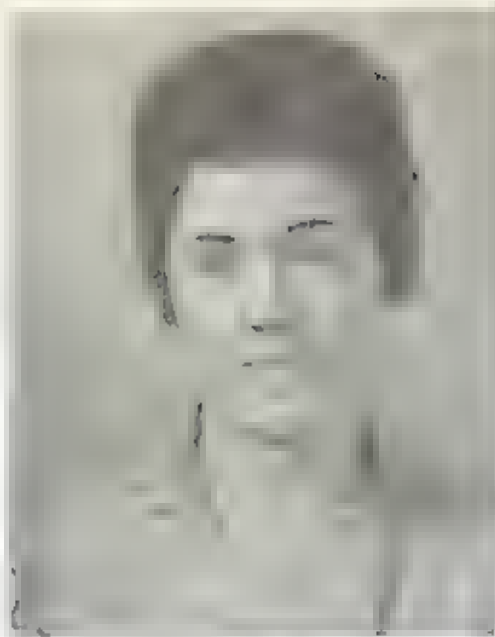

With the end of the school year, the curtain falls on the final act of high school life for the senior class. Throughout their four years at Baraga they have gathered many cherished memories. As they leave school they will find a different world. It will not be as hostile and bleak as in the days of Bishop Baraga, but it will have its modern-day pitfalls and dangers. The graduates, however, will have the knowledge that they possess the best education possible, both materially and spiritually, that will remain with them always and help them become better Catholics and better citizens.

Bev,
 Best of luck in the future. And really lots of happiness. Never forget the fun we've had ^{Quality: Cally} ~~to~~ ^{JAMES PICKARDS AND CO} 8th grade.
 Maybe some year we can go to Negaunee again. Remember when Cheryl was here the fun we had. Never forget the jeep ride and the ^{VOLLWERTH} ~~fun~~ we shared. As

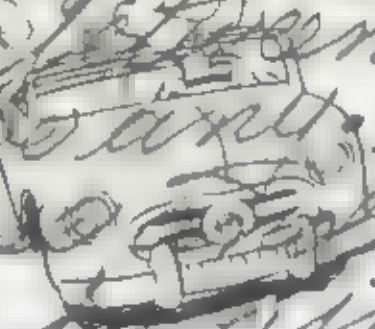

"That's a lot of bologna," says Diane Musolf, as Veronica Garceau and Marlene Grobar agree.

The years pass ^{SWANSON'S FUNERAL HOME} if you remember the times we went to the beach and Suzie's slumber party. Bev, the cops had me that night. Remember our Freshie year and always treasure our friendship as I know I will. Bev, don't let anyone get you down as you told me the night we had our chat. I know how you feel. You are too nice a person to let others bother you. If you move I hope we will still remain friends. There have never been fights between us and I doubt if there will be any. I hope we will always be close and able to trust each other as we have in the past. I never really knew you till now and I'm glad I do. Keep smiling and keep the pirate hair-do its darting.
